WHITE SLAVE KING

lice Indictments After Botwin's Story.

SAYS REVELATIONS WILL BE WIDESPREAD

Authorities Seek 'Fixers' Named in Confession as 'Pipe Line' from Force to Underworld.

Widespread revelations of the "white slave trust," which, according to District Attorney Swann, will pave the way for the indictment of many patrolmen, were made yesterday by Yushe Botwin, after he had pleaded to an indictment charging white slavery before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions. GUARD AT BORDER District Attorney James E. Smith, will, the authorities believe, result in more important disclosures than did the Rockefeller investigation.

Two powerful and wealthy men were named by Botwin in his voluntary statement to the prosecutor. Through these, who are known as "fixers," it is charged, the police worked their "pipe line" to the underworld banks. This pair is said to have dealt directly with the police.

The nearest the county authorities ever came to a man of this type was in August, 1912, when an indictment was returned against Mortche Goldberg for keeping a disorderly house. Goldberg, however, jumped his bail and fied to South America. In 1913 he crept back to New York, and in March, 1915, was actively re-engaged in his old trade when he got wind of the fact that District Attorney Perkins had indicted him. He cluded detectives with warrants and went to Buenos Ayres, where he is now said to be hiding.

Hopes to Catch Successors.

By Botwin's confession Assistant District Attorney Smith thinks he is put upon the trail of at least two of Goldberg's successors. In following "leads" furnished by the confessed slaver, Mr. Smith expects to be assisted slaver, and salleged go-between for the detectives, cenfesses, the prosecutor will seek indictments for white slavery next week.

OFFICERS AT YARD SCORE NAVAL BILL

Disgusted at Promotion System-Say No Engineers Are Needed.

Officers at the navy yard are disgusted with the naval bill now pending in the House. They particularly disapprove of the proposed system of promotion which leaves the final decision to Secretary Daniels. If promotions were to be made by selection, it was s said yesterday, the final decision should Rasch rest with a competent board of naval officers, such as a general staff for the

There is still a hope among the officers that the bill will not be enacted into law at this session of Congress. They are convinced that it is packed with pork, and will be of small benefit to the navy.

The suggestion credited to Mr.

Daniels that 300 civilian engineers be appointed to strengthen that branch of the service was declared to be needless the service was declared to be needless and impracticable. An expert in engi-neering problems declared that the neering problems declared that the navy was never better equipped in this line than now, and that civilian engi-neers would be a hindrance. More engineers would be needed, he said, but they should come from Annapolis.

"The navy was never so well off as it is now for capable engineers," he said. "In 1907, ten years after the engineering corps went into the discard, the Atlantic fleet made the trip card, the Atlantic fleet made the trip around the world, and there was not a breakdown. Just now the same fleet, greatly increased in numbers, is manœuvring on the Atlantic coast, and there is no cry for more engineers. It is merely a plan of the politicians to get some one into the navy.

"To expect the civillans to stay in the navy three years and then make navy officers out of them is really humorous. To tell one of them to go on deck with the expectation that he will know the routine after three years below deck is asking just a little too much."

branch coming down out of the hills.

Fully fifty persons are known to have been lost, and men in charge of the many relief parties already at work feel that this number will be considerably increased when the frightened miners and their families have returned to their homes and the count is completed.

The flood came upon the people early Wednesday morning. W. A. Smith, an insurance broker, of Cincinnati, who was in the district, reported that water rolled down the narrow valley foam crested, and from his "It was a godsend, as I was heavily placed a number of these kits at the with money for temporary expenses and is stage as "Rosina Van Dyck," had practically ruined his business as a teacher of music.

The proceeding yesterday was a motion for alimony by Mrs. Hageman. Hageman said the sent his wife $100 on July 15, and two weeks later mailed her with money for temporary expenses and is now looking for an opening for her to work a sasistant janitor or caretaker, where rooms and enough money for food will be provided for her.

If any landlord or superintendent can offer such an opportunity, the auxiliary will vouch for her ability to make good.

Farm to Daughters of Militiamen.

A summer home for Guardsmen's daughters is the latest solution proposed for the problem of providing for families left needy by the absence of their breadwinners on the border.

Mrs. James A. Burden yesterday put the Vanderbilt Farm, at Newdorp, S. I., at the disposal of the Active Service Auxiliary, for girls of from twelve to sixteen years of age. Next Tuesday morning, the farm will be thronged with the Guardsmen's daughters most in need of country food and air. The Board of Health is passing upon the health of the girls and each tries to look her palest when she comes before that august OPERA CONDUCTOR IN COURT when she comes before that august body, in order to win two weeks in the country.

The wife of a Guardsman, with a cne month's old baby in her arms, yesterday came to the offices of the Auxiliary and said that she had neither food nor a place to sleep. While she had been in the hospital, her place as janitress had been filled, and she had been unable to find other work, she said. The auxiliary provided her with money for temporary expenses and is tan last spring.

"It was a godsend, as I was heavily in debt," he said. "My salary at the Metropolitan was reduced, and far from making a large profit from outside studio work I am heavily in debt and haven't the means to pay up."

Justice Tierney reserved decision.

Miss Maud Wetmore is chairman, has placed a number of these kits at the disposal of the Active Service Auxiliary, containing everything needed by a soldier's infant son. hTese are proving of great use, as the muster-roll of Guardsmen's babies born during the past few days is a long one.
